

Danube Vltava Sava Polymer Meeting – DVS Polymer Meeting
May 11 – May 13, 2015, Toscana Congress Center, Gmunden, Austria www.dvspm.at

This conference builds on the tradition of the “Austrian Slovenian Polymer Meeting”, and the “Advances in Polymer Science & Technology” bringing together the polymer communities of the central European region. It is aiming at facilitating the communication between industry and academia, is covering recent developments & future targets and considering global trends & events.

Scientific Program

Monday, May 11, 2015: Plenary Day
Tuesday, May 12, 2015: Parallel Sessions
Wednesday, May 13, 2015: Parallel Sessions

Symposia:

1. Polymer Chemistry

- Polymerization
- Catalysis
- Additives and Stabilizers for Polymers
- Functional Polymers
- Active and Smart Composites

2. Polymer Characterization

- Chemical Characterization
- Physical Characterization (Structures)
- Mechanical Characterization (Rheology and Mechanical Tests)

3. Polymer Conversion

- Basic Improvements in Screw, Mold and Die Design
- Function Integration with Injection Molding Technologies
- Extrusion and Compounding
- Flow-induced Crystallization of Polymers
- Modeling
- Multi Scale Characterization and Simulation

4. Polymers & Sustainability

- Bio based Polymers
- Polymers for Energy Applications
- Polymers and Environment
- LCA of Polymers

Social Program

Monday, May 11, 2015: Poster Session
Tuesday, May 12, 2015: Conference Dinner

Organizing Committee

Prof. Wolfgang Buchberger, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Ing. Wolfgang Bohmayr, Plastics Cluster Upper Austria
Prof. Oliver Brüggemann, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Dr. Markus Gahleitner, Borealis Polyolefine GmbH Linz, Austria
Prof. Sabine Hild, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Prof. Zoltan Major, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Dr. Andreas Meinecke, Borealis Polyolefine GmbH Linz, Austria
Prof. Christian Paulik, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Prof. Gernot Zitzenbacher, University of Applied Sciences, Wels, Austria

Scientific Committee

Prof. Clemens Holzer, Montan University Leoben, Austria
Prof. Wolfgang Kern, Montan University Leoben, Austria
Prof. Simone Knaus, Technical University Vienna, Austria
Prof. Robert Liska, Technical University Vienna, Austria
Dr. Maria Omastova, Slovak Academy of Sciences, Bratislava, Slovakia
Prof. Volker Ribitsch, University Graz, Austria
Prof. Franz Stelzer, Technical University Graz, Austria
Dr. Ema Žagar, National Institute of Chemistry, Ljubljana, Slovenia
Prof. Majda Žigon, Slovenian Chemical Society, Ljubljana, Slovenia

Conference Fees

The fee is charged per participant and is 500 (450) Euro. For students the conference fee is 300 (270) Euro. The numbers in brackets refer to early bird registration. One day participation is possible for 150 Euro.

For Registration or more Information please contact:

Ms Renate Herbrik, Institute of Polymer Chemistry (ICP),

Timeline

Second circular will be sent out by mid November 2014.
Deadline for abstracts will be January 15, 2015.
Deadline for registration will be February 28, 2015.

Johannes Kepler University (JKU) Linz, Austria

The Johannes Kepler University in Linz (JKU Linz, www.jku.at) is a young European University with a special focus on the social and economic, legal, natural and technical sciences. Through diverse research and teaching achievements in these fields, in the more than forty years of its existence the University has established itself as a respected institution on both a national and international level. Interdisciplinary cooperation and a close proximity to business and society determine the JKU's basic orientation.

On the basis of the principle of the unity of research and teaching, the JKU Linz provides services of great assistance to society, business and culture through the creation and transfer of know-how in the aforementioned disciplines. The University's main target groups are students, the scientific community and organizations in both the private and public sectors. As the largest research and teaching institution in Upper Austria and a know-how transfer center, the University contributes to the retention and development of Upper Austria as a dynamic economic region. It participates in centers of competence and develops spin-off programs, which support the foundation of new companies.
