

The 4th Novi Sad Algebraic Conference

in conjunction with
A Workshop on Semigroups and Applications

Novi Sad, Serbia, June 5-9, 2013

UNIVERSITY OF NOVI SAD

Faculty of Science, Department of Mathematics and Informatics

Novi Sad, SERBIA

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT

The NSAC is a series of conferences organised every four years at the Department of Mathematics and Informatics, Faculty of Science, University of Novi Sad, with particular emphasis to areas of algebra and related fields that have been cultivated by researchers from Novi Sad. The main topics of the 4th edition of NSAC include:

- Universal algebra and its applications in computer science (in particular, in Constraint Satisfaction Problems);
- Lattices and other ordered structures;
- Model theory and set theory;
- Connections between algebra, logic, and combinatorics.

In addition, the conference will be integrated with a workshop Semigroups and Applications (WSA) focusing on:

- Semigroup theory, automata, groups and their interactions.

The aim of NSAC 2013 is to promote the recent research results and trends in these areas.

The conference will begin in the morning of June 5, 2013 (Wednesday); it will end on June 9, 2013 (Sunday) around lunchtime. (We expect most of the participants to arrive on Tuesday, June 4.) The scientific programme will consist of 18 invited (50-minute) lectures delivered by leading researchers in the above areas (10 in the main NSAC programme and 8 related to the WSA workshop), and a number of short (20-minute) contributed talks.

The official language of the conference is English. Notebook computers, video-beams and overhead projectors will be available to the speakers. For electronic presentations, most of the usual formats (pdf, ps, ppt,...) are supported.
